TOURIST TRADE ON THE INCREASE

Philadelphia Teachers, Knights Templar, Knights of Columbus and Others, Plan Trips here within the next Month.

Busy weeks during the latter part of May and the beginning of June are forecasted for the Gettysburg people who cater to the tourist traffic. A number of parties have booked railroad and hotel accommodations for the coming weeks and the number of visitors promises to be unusually large.

The latest party to arrange for a tour here will be composed of no less than 150 school teachers from Philadelphia. They have made reservations at the Eagle and Hotel Gettysburg and will be here for three days, May 29, 30, and 31. The teachers are coming under the direction of the Pennsylvania Railroad which is making all preliminary arrangements.

Saturday afternoon, May 22, the Columbia Club, of Philadelphia, will come to Gettysburg to remain until the following afternoon and on Sunday, May 23, a party of Knights Templar from Pittsburgh will arrive here to spend the day on the battlefield. Both parties will be quartered at the Eagle Hotel.

A delegation of the Knights of Columbus 300 strong have booked accommodations here for June 12 and 13, and they will spend the time in touring the field. They will come in a private train and special arrangements will be made for their entertainment while here. The Ninth Pennsylvania Cavalry Association will hold a reunion here on June 10th.

The Reading Railroad and the Central Railroad of New Jersey will both run excursions to Gettysburg on Sunday, May 30th. The former will come from Philadelphia while the latter will start at Newark.

Excursions from Elkins, West Virginia, and Cumberland, Maryland, have been added to the list of those booked by the Western Maryland for Memorial Day, May 31st.

Two colored excursions from Baltimore have been booked by the Western Maryland for the first two Mondays in June. On the seventh the Linden Beneficial Association will bring a crowd estimated at from 500 to 600. On the following Monday the St. Barnabas Catholic church will bring from 600 to 800, according to the estimates furnished by the Passenger Department of the railroad.

WILLIAM FEESER

Well Known in Lower End of Adams County.

William Feeser died at the home of a relative, near Richmond, Va., Friday, May 7, from a complication of diseases, aged about 52 years.

He was a son of the late William Feeser and wife, of Silver Run, Md. He leaves a wife and several children living in Baltimore; also, two sisters, Mrs. H. S. Morelock and Mrs. William Frock, of Silver Run; one brother, Jacob Feeser, of Littlestown. He is also survived by a step-brother, Daniel Bittinger, of Penn. township; a step-sister, Mrs. P. M. Wiest, of Hanover, and a half-brother, Arthur Feeser, of Silver Run.

THOMAS O'FARRELL

Funeral was Held in McSherrystown. Interment there also.

Thomas O'Farrell died at the home of his step-sister, Mrs. V. P. Little, McSherrystown, Sunday from a complication of diseases.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Farrell and was born in Bedford county and was seventy years old. He is survived by one sister, Sister Appolonia of Mercy Hospital, Baltimore and two step-sisters, Mrs. V. P. Little and Mrs. John A. Poist. One step-brother, Joseph O'Farrell also survives.

The funeral was held this morning in McSherrystown.

JUDGE M'CLEAN'S WILL PROBATED

Asks that those who Receive Money as Results of Bequests shall Give One-Tenth of it to God. Asks Modest Burial.

The will of Hon. William McClean has been probated. After several special legacies giving his law library, his theological library and other books, the rest of the estate is given in trust for the use and support of his daughter, Olivia C. McClean and, upon the termination of the trust, to the children of his first marriage, his son by his second marriage not participating by reason of what he has already received.

Then follows the expression of one of the observed rules of his life "I trust that of all God shall give the recipients under this my will, they will surely give the tenth unto Him."

He indicates "there should be no unnecessary expense at his funeral and that his coffin be an inexpensive one so that his body can return to its mother earth undelayed. Let no mourning be worn and let the sun shine into the house and into the hearts and lives of the children with God's love and peace."

He names as the executors of his will his daughter Olivia C., and his son, Wm. Arch McClean.

The will of the late Adam Bubb, of Hamilton township, has also been probated in the office of Register and Recorder Gardner. After making a special bequest of a bureau to his son, Andrew Bubb, he leaves all of his property to his wife, during her lifetime, and at her death directs that the personal property be disposed of and the estate divided equally among his four children. Two sons, Andrew Bubb and Lewis Bubb, are named as the executors. The will was made August 15, 1914.

KILL TWO BILLS

Measures Defeated in the House by Decisive Votes.

Many Adams County people are directly interested in the defeat of two bills in the House on Monday.

One of these would increase the tax on automobiles, motor trucks and other like vehicles and it is estimated would add to the revenues of the State at least $350,000 a year should it become a law. There was vigorous opposition to this measure from the Federation of Automobile clubs, individual auto owners and others, who organized a campaign against the proposed additional taxes. After two hours' debate the bill fell by a vote of 59 ayes to 120 noes.

The other administration revenue bill defeated was that presented by Representative Hess, of Lancaster. It would impose a two cent tax upon the transfer of $100 stock of domestic and foreign corporations, co-partnerships and stock associations. It has been stated that the Governor counted upon raising about $500,000 a year from the enactment of this legislation. On this bill the vote was 89 for it and 73 against it, 104 votes being necessary for final passage.

DECORATE GRAVES SUNDAY EVENING

Catholic Memorial Service is Moved to Later Hour in Order to Accommodate Veterans. Procession to and from Cemetery.

Services for the veterans of the Civil War who are buried in the Catholic Cemetery will be held on Sunday evening, May 30, when the usual procession of the Sodality and the other organizations of the church, together with the veterans will be held and the graves will be decorated.

In response to the expressed desire of members of Corporal Skelly Post, the custom of holding these exercises in the afternoon which was followed last May will not be observed this year, but the evening will be used instead, the old soldiers finding it more convenient at that time. Singing hymns, the procession will move from St. Francis Xavier church at 6:30 in the evening and will end its way slowly on West High street to the cemetery where flowers will be strewn on the graves of departed comrades.

Rev. W. F. Boyle will conduct brief services at the cross in the center of the cemetery and the march back to the church will then be taken up. The veterans and all others interested will be invited to attend the service to follow in the church and Rev. Fr. Boyle will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

This custom established several years ago by Rev. Fr. Dougherty has come to be an annual feature of Gettysburg's Memorial Day observance and one that is greatly appreciated by the veterans and much enjoyed by others who participate.

SERIOUS MISHAPS BEFALL CITIZENS

Broken Leg, Dislocated Bones, and Other Accidents Suffered by Town and County People. Child Gets Hand Caught in Grindstone.

John Flickinger, farmer at the Hoffman Orphanage, sustained a severe and painful injury Monday afternoon when a young colt fell on him. The man had both bones of one leg, between the ankle and the knee, broken, the bones were splintered and portions protruded through the flesh. Mr. Flickinger was trimming the feet of the colt when the animal suddenly threw itself and fell on him. Dr. H. M. Hartman was summoned and advised the removal of the patient to the Keystone Hospital at Harrisburg, and this was at once arranged for.

Miss Nettie Orner, the ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Orner, of East Middle street, tripped and fell over a wire while playing at her home Monday afternoon and dislocated her arm. A physician was called and rendered the necessary surgical attention.

Samuel Scott, an employee of the Gettysburg Ice and Storage Company, received severe injury to one leg on Tuesday morning at the Western Maryland freight depot while loading ice cream tubs from a team to a car. One of the tubs was permitted to drop against the hind legs of the horse and when the animal plunged forward Scott was thrown from the wagon. He received the attention of a physician and will be confined to his home for some time.

When little Edith Burk, the eighteen months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burk, residing on the Hartzell farm west of town, got her hand caught in the wheel of a grindstone on Monday, the ends of two fingers were badly mashed. The tot had been playing about the place when the accident happened. A local physician is attending her.

NICKEY—ROBINSON

Miss Robinson, of Littlestown, Marries Reading Man.

Earl G. Nickey, of Reading, and Miss Helen L. Robinson, of Littlestown, were married at 8 p. m. Saturday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wright Beck, Reading, by Rev. Scott R. Wagner, pastor of Second Reformed church. George Robinson, of Littlestown, brother of the bride, was best man, and Miss Mabel Wallick, of York, was bridesmaid. Mr. and Mrs. Nickey have gone to housekeeping in their newly furnished apartment at 518 North Ninth street, Reading. Mr. Nickey is a printer on the Reading Telegram. He formerly lived at Hanover.

The bride was until a week ago a member of the teaching corps of the Littlestown schools.

A NEW SERIAL

Romance to Delight Readers during Coming Weeks.

The Times starts to-day the publication of another serial "His Love Story". It is a tale of love and adventure centering about the love affair of a young captain of the French army and a beautiful American girl. They fall in love at first sight; the young officer is whisked away to active service in Algiers before he can declare himself, goes through skirmish and battle. How he is left for dead in the desert sands, is miraculously saved, and finally restored to the girl he loves, makes mighty interesting reading. Begin with the first installment. Page four.

BASE BALL

Ursinus will Cross Bats with Gettysburg on Wednesday.

Gettysburg College base ball team will meet a worthy opponent on Nixon Field Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock when Ursinus will appear. The Collegeville team has had a highly creditable season and there has been no issue between the two schools since they played to a seventeen inning tie last year. Local interest is keen for Wednesday's game and an interesting nine innings is likely to result.—advertisement 1

PLANS FOR THE INFANT LEAGUE

Hagerstown would Use Tabernacle Timber for Ball Field. Martinsburg to Encourage Rooting by Female Fans. Other Sidelights.

A contract is under consideration at Hagerstown by the base ball managers for the lumber used in the Biedervolf tabernacle. They claim that they could use it nicely at their new park. All preliminary work will be finished this week, such as the leveling of the grounds and the making of the diamond in order that Joe Laughlin may have his boys working out early next week, as he wants to. Just as soon as the evangelistic campaign closes a large force of men will be put to work to tear down the building, while another large force will be engaged on the improvements at the baseball park. Quite a bit of the advertising space on the fences has been sold. Only a few feet are left on the outside, while about half of the inside has been contracted for.

Martinsburg has so much faith in the ability of the fair sex to help win games with their rooting, that as a special inducement to draw them to the games, the base ball club has decided to throw the grandstand open to them free of charge. At the meeting recently of the club officials voted that admission for men to the stand would be 15 cents, but no charge would be made for ladies. The rooting of the Martinsburg girls has always been a valuable asset to the club and it is felt that they should be shown this courtesy as an inducement to continue the good work. Admission to the grounds will be 25 cents to everyone.

The signed contract of Earl Bennett, the sensational pitcher, who won 20 out of 23 games in which he participated for Dover, Delaware, last season, was received in Frederick on Saturday. Manager Morrison is confident that Bennett and King will form the nucleus of one of the strongest mound staffs in the circuit. Cranston, another Eastern Shore twirler, has also been signed with the Hustlers. Last year Cranston tried out with Jack Dunn and his Baltimore Orioles. The signatures of the following were all received on Saturday: Peck, a pitcher, hailing from Baltimore; Mylin, last year third-baseman on the Lancaster aggregation and outfielder Hooker, formerly of Hagerstown.

George J. Stroh, of Syracuse, N. Y., arrived in Chambersburg Monday afternoon and was met at the station by a party of base ball fans and enthusiasts. Mr. Stroh said that all the boys signed for the club are good plain living, clean-cut young men. He said drinking or carousing will not be allowed on or off the field. Continuing he said: "I want to give the people of Chambersburg a team to be proud of both on and off the field, the conduct of the players being such as to bring praise to both city and club." Manager Stroh was educated at Fairfield Military Academy, a preparatory school to West Point. From 1902 to 1908 he played with Montreal in the International League. He afterwards went to the New York State League and in 1909 went to Elmira. He was then sold to Elmira and about the middle of that season he broke his thumb and was sold to Harrisburg. He played there in 1910, 1911 and 1913. In 1914 he managed the Johnsbury club, which ended second in its league.

CONRAD—GEBHART

Evening Wedding in Catholic Church at Bonneauville.

In St. Joseph's church, Bonneauville, Sunday evening Miss Edna Gebhart, of that place, and James Conrad, of McSherrystown, were married by Rev. Fr. Shanahan. The bride was attended by Miss Bertha Gebhart, and the best man was John Lynerd, McSherrystown. A reception followed the ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gebhart. Mr. Conrad is engaged in business in McSherrystown where they will reside.

LUSITANIA FOLLOWED ORDER OF ADMIRALTY

Captain Admits Danger Was Known.

THE DEAD NUMBER 1153

115 Americans Were Lost and 73 Saved.

THE U-39 FIRED TORPEDOES

Funeral For Many Victims Held in Queenstown.

London, May 11.—Hope of finding further survivors of the Cunard line steamship Lusitania, which was torpedoed by a German submarine on Friday afternoon on the south coast of Ireland, has been given up.

The death list, as given out by the Cunard offices, stands at 1153, of whom 115 were Americans. The Cunard line's official report says:

"Total number of survivors, 764, including 462 passengers and 302 of the crew.

"One hundred and forty-four bodies recovered, of whom eighty-seven are identified, and fifty-seven unidentified. Identified bodies include sixty-five passengers and twenty-two crew.

"Number of persons injured: Thirty passengers, seventeen crew."

Of the survivors, seventy-three are reported to be from the United States.

The Central News has received a dispatch from its correspondent at Genoa, who says that a telegram received there from Munich declares the German submarine U-39 was responsible for the sinking of the Lusitania.

First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Spencer Churchill declared in the house of commons that Captain Turner, of the Lusitania, had acknowledged receipt of messages from the admiralty, giving him warning and directions for the course he was to take.

No Protection For Liners.

He said a board of trade inquiry will be held, to determine the circumstances attending the loss of the Lusitania, and added:

"In the meantime I must make it plain that in no circumstances will it be possible to make public the naval dispositions for patrolling our coast. Our resources do not enable us to provide destroyer escorts for mail and passenger ships."

Captain Turner, at the coroner's inquest at Kinsale, Ireland, said he had carried out the admiralty instructions to "the best of his ability."

Although there were only 188 passengers from the United States so far as is known, 454 of the passengers gave their addresses from that country when they obtained reservations. Of this number 273 were drowned, including eight infants less than a year old. One hundred and eighty-one persons who gave American addresses were saved, including six children.

United States Consul Frost, at Cork, sent the following cablegram to the state department in Washington:

"Please assume that persons not listed as either survivors of identified dead are missing and almost certainly dead. No news of Vanderbilt, Stone, Shields, Myers, Klein, Hubbard, Forman, nor of their bodies."

The body of Charles Frohman, that has been recovered, was taken charge of by the American consul.

Alfred Gwynne anderbilt, according to survivors, gave up his life that a woman might have a chance to live. Although he could not swim, he gave a lifebelt which he wore to a young woman whom he did not know.

Hubbards In Stateroom.

Elbert Hubbard and Mrs. Hubbard, according to a survivor, were in their stateroom when the torpedo struck the giant liner.

A general funeral service was held in Queenstown for the dead which have been brought ashore. The bodies were borne from the town at nine o'clock in the morning. A special high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Coleman's Cathedral, with the bishop of Cloyne officiating.

The demand for United States flags was so great that the supply gave out. Most of the coffins containing American victims of the disaster were draped with the United States colors. All the coffins, including those bearing the American banner, bore the Union Jack.

It is possible that more bodies may be recovered. A wireless from the steamship St. Paul said many bodies were passed twenty miles west of Kinsale. This is about ten miles from where the Lusitania was sunk.

Criticism of both the British admiralty and of the Cunard line has been uttered by the survivors. It is asserted that the British admiralty should have sent warships to protect a liner of the value and importance of the Lusitania, bearing so many hundreds of lives.

CHARLES FROHMAN.

Theatrical Man Who Perished on the Lusitania.

It is declared that the Lusitania, although capable of attaining a speed of twenty-five knots or more, was sailing at not more than eighteen knots when she was struck.

One surviving passenger says that after the explosion of the first torpedo Captain Turner refused to order the boats lowered, believing that the giant liner would remain afloat until it could reach shore. This delay, it is said, caused the loss of many lives.

GERMANY REITERATES WARNINGS TO U. S.

Expresses Sympathy For Loss of American Lives.

Berlin, by way of London, May 11.—The following dispatch has been sent by the German foreign office to the German embassy at Washington:

"The German government desires to express its deepest sympathy at the loss of lives on board the Lusitania. The responsibility rests, however, with the British government, which is starving the population of Germany, and has forced Germany to resort to retaliatory measures.

"In spite of the German offer to stop the submarine war in case the starvation plan was given up, British merchant vessels are being armed and have tried to ram submarines. They cannot, therefore, be treated as ordinary merchant vessels. On the present voyage the Lusitania carried 5400 cases of ammunition, while the rest of the cargo consisted chiefly of contraband. The German government cannot but regret that Americans felt more inclined to trust to English promises than to pay attention to the warnings from Germany."

Von Bernstorff Expresses Regret.

Washington, May 11.—Count Bernstorff, the German ambassador, called on Secretary of State Bryan.

After a half-hour's conference between the ambassador and Secretary Bryan the following statement was, by mutual agreement, given out by the secretary:

"The German ambassador called at the state department and expressed his deep regret that the events of the war had led to the loss of so many American lives."

Pearson, Oil Man, Among Dead.

Washington, May 11.—Dr. S. S. Pearson, head of the Pearson-Cowdrey interests in the United States, met his death on the Lusitania, according to word received by a representative of the Pearson company in Washington. Dr. Pearson was the chief owner of the Mexico and Northwestern railway and was a brother of Lord Cowdray, who was a central figure during the Huerta regime in Mexico.

Y. M. C. A. Man Quits Under Cloud.

Altoona, Pa., May 11.—It was announced that G. L. Nichols, for eight years secretary of the P. R. Y. M. C. A. in Juniata, had tendered his resignation and left town with him family. He confessed to the board of directors, it is said, that he was $376 short in his accounts. The officers are not likely to prosecute.

AIRSHIPS RAID BRITISH TOWNS

German Aviators Drop Bombs Near London.

SERIOUS DAMAGE DONE

Several People Were Wounded and It is Said Some Were Killed—Many Houses Wrecked.

London, May 11.—Two Zeppelin airships dropped bombs on Westcliff-on-Sea, near South End, a seaside resort in Essex, about thirty miles from London.

Incoming passengers on trains from South End report the air raid there, in which serious property damage was done and which caused some loss of life.

It is reported that several shops were burned at Leigh, a town near South End, and about twenty-five miles from London. Four Zeppelins are said to have dropped forty or fifty bombs there.

Warning of the approach of hostile aircraft was given. Several machines took part in the raid, but whether they were Zeppelins or aeroplanes the residents were unable to state, as the weather was cloudy.

Bombs struck houses in various parts of the town, but no deaths have been reported. One man and his wife were badly burned in a fire started by an incendiary bomb. One resident told of three bombs dropping near his home, none of which caused any damage.

Sixty bombs were dropped by the aircraft at South End, but most of them fell on the beach or in other places where they exploded harmlessly. One bomb dropped near a ship on which were 1200 German civilians who had been interned.

A British aeroplane went in pursuit and drove the hostile aircraft out to sea. A report was received from Romford that a Zeppelin had been seen in the neighborhood, apparently in difficulties, but whether in consequence of unfavorable wind or of having been hit was unknown.

GAVE BABES TO SEA

Mother Committed Her Dead Children to the Deep Herself.

Cork, Ireland, May 11.—One woman, a passenger on the Lusitania, lost all three of her children in the disaster and gave the bodies of two of them to the sea herself, says a story in the Herald.

When the ship went down she held up the three children in the water, shrieking for help. When rescued, two were dead. Their room was required, and the mother was brave enough to realize it.

"Give them to me!" she shrieked. "Give them to me, my bonnie wee things. I will bury them. They are mine to bury as they were mine to keep."

With her form shaking with sorrow she took hold of each little one from the rescuers and reverently placed it in the water again, and people in the boat wept with her as she murmured a little sobbing prayer to the great God above.

Just as the rescuers were landing, the woman's third and only remaining child died.

"GREATEST ACHIEVEMENT"

Take "Joyful Pride" In Sinking of the Lusitania.

Amsterdam, May 11.—The Cologne Volks Zeitung says:

"The sinking of the Lusitania is a success of our submarines which must be placed beside the greatest achievement of this war. The sinking of the giant English steamer is a success of moral significance which is still greater than material success.

"With joyful pride we contemplate this latest deed of our navy. It will not be the last.

"The English wish to abandon the German people to death by starvation. We are more humane. We simply sink an English ship with passengers who at their own risk and responsibility entered the zone of operations."

$60,644,355 Belgian Aid.

New York, May 11.—The latest statement issued by the commission for the relief of the Belgians places the total of the cash and cargoes contributed for distribution by the commission at $60,644,355. This includes an estimate of the cargoes arranged for delivery this month.

Double Powder Plant Guard.

Dover, N. J., May 11.—The guard at the Pictanny arsenal of the United States naval powder works at Lake Denmark, five miles from here, was doubled when fifty-four soldiers of the regular army arrived from Fort Hamilton. No explanation was given.

Americans Leaving Germany.

Geneva, May 11.—A news dispatch from Basel says a number of American citizens, mostly business men, are arriving there from Germany, where they will await developments in the relations between the United States and Germany.

Fank to Die on June 22.

Atlanta, Ga., May 11.—Leo M. Frank was sentenced to be hanged Tuesday, June 22, for the murder of Mary Phagan.

May 26—Base Ball. Western Maryland. Nixon Field.

GERMANS FALL BACK ON COURLAND FRONT

Strong Russian Forces Check Northward Advance.

London, May 11.—The Exchange Telegraph company publishes a dispatch from its Copenhagen correspondent declaring that the Germans have met a severe check to the westward of Mitau, capital of the Russian province of Courland. Numerous forces of Russians in strong positions compelled them to retreat.

Russians Flee, Says Vienna.

Vienna, May 11.—The Austrian war office made public the following official communication:

"Our troops pursuing the enemy have crossed the Carpathian ridge and the frontier. Hungary is now free from the enemy."

"The battle continues in Galician territory. The enemy is retreating along a front of more than 200 kilometers (about 124 1/3 miles) from the Vistula to the Ussok pass."

"The Teutonic allies have passed victoriously the line of the Ussok pass, Komanoza, Krosno, Debica and Szauczka."

"In the Carpathian sector east of the Ussok pass, and on the front in southeast Galicia more violent battles are developing. We have captured several Russian positions. Strong hostile forces attacked our troops on the heights northeast of Ottynia, where the battle is continuing."

KURDS MENACE AMERICANS

The Missionaries at Van Are in Grave Danger.

Tiflis, May 11.—American missionaries in the vilayet of Van, where the Armenians appear to be weakening after a fierce resistance against attacking Turks and Kurds, are reported in grave danger.

The American missions are located in the eastern suburbs of the vilayet, where for fourteen days the Armenians have been standing off their besiegers. Eleven hundred Armenian boys and girls and thirty American citizens have taken refuge in this quarter of the town. The Turks have fired 17,000 shells upon the defenders in the firing in the last few days.

Let This Crew Escape.

London, May 11.—The British steamship Queen Wilhelmina, of Hartlepool, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine off Blyth on Saturday. Time was allowed the crew to take to the boats. The men were picked up by a patrol boat and landed at Shields.

Turks Talked Peace—Shot.

Paris, May 11.—A Sofia dispatch to the Temps states that several Turkish officials who went to the Turkish minister of war, Enver Pasha, and asked that he try to effect immediate peace with the allies, were arrested and shot by his order.

BIG TRUST IS NOW TO AID SETTLERS

St. Louis Revives Mullanphy Fund For Immigrants.

INACTIVE FOR FORTY YEARS

Sum Left by Former Mayor, Grown to Million, Will Be Used to Maintain Officials at Railroad Station Who Must Offer Help to All Who Go West in Need of Assistance.

A public trust fund at St. Louis of more than $1,000,000, practically inactive for forty years for want of beneficiaries, is now to be applied to the aid of immigrants and other purposes.

Established in 1851 by the will of Bryan Mullanphy, former mayor of St. Louis, it consisted of one-third of Mullanphy's fortune, then a little over $500,000. Its object was to furnish aid to "poor immigrants and travelers coming to St. Louis on their way bona fide to settle in the west."

In the early years thousands were aided. St. Louis was then the western outpost of the railroads. But fewer and fewer applied for help, and as long as fifteen years ago the trustees sought in vain to use the money for a hospital for indigent poor.

The fund continued inactive. Its large income was poured into tenements, said to be among the "models" of St. Louis.

In 1913 the St. Louis Civic league discovered that the city receives every year not only from 8,000 and 10,000 immigrants from the old world, but thousands of young Americans seeking to earn their livelihood. But unfortunately, in the language of the will, the beneficiaries had to be "on their way bona fide to settle in the west."

Then it was found that the ordinances governing the trustees required the officers to meet "every incoming train and steamboat" in order to reach all immigrants and travelers needing aid. This provision had for years been a dead letter because one or two secretaries couldn't keep pace with the railroads, and the board never adapted its practices to changed conditions.

A new plan was conceived. An ordinance was drafted to establish a travelers' aid bureau at Union station, St. Louis, with three agents at salaries not to exceed $1,800 a year, at least one of whom should be on hand all the time every day in the year. Backed by the united social agencies of the city, the municipal assembly has just passed this ordinance.

The three members of the Mullanphy board, which the new city charter reduced from an old fashioned, unwieldy body of thirteen selected by the city council to a modern, workable board of three unsalaried commissioners appointed by the mayor, have taken to the new idea with enthusiasm. The board even plans to go to the courts again in order that the funds may be used to aid any poor traveler, whether he stays in St. Louis or moves on.

It is possible that the fund will be used for even wider purposes. Among those suggested are assisting in the deportation of immigrants who become charges on the community, establishing new means of employment, assisting city dwellers to establish themselves on farms, protective work among young girls, the furnishing of interpreters, free legal and medical aid to travelers and the development of good temporary lodgings.

WOMEN IN DUEL, ONE DEAD.

Fight With Guns In Roadway to Settle Dispute Over Land.

After repeated quarrels over land lines Miss Mamie Reed and Mrs. Lillie McDonald of Morgan, Ga., both well to do, armed themselves with guns, met on the public highway and fought a duel. Miss Reed was killed. Mrs. McDonald offered to surrender and said Miss Reed fired first.

Miss Reed was about forty years old. Mrs. McDonald is aged thirty and the wife of a prominent planter and mother of several children.

DOG SAVES AUTO PARTY.

Goes to Farmhouse After Crash and Takes Help to Injured.

A collie dog brought help to a party of injured motorists who shot into a ditch between South Bend, Ind., and Niles, Mich.

The dog went to a farmhouse, where he set up a vociferous barking under the bedroom windows. "A woman followed him along the road. Seeing nothing she was about to turn back, when the animal seized her dress with his teeth and urged her on."

GETS $20,000 FOR HER HAIR.

Girl Whose Scalp Was Torn Off in Factory Wins Jury's Sympathy.

Miss Mary Haynes, whose scalp was torn off when her hair caught in an unprotected shafting in the factory of a stationery manufacturer at Brooklyn, two years ago, was awarded $20,000 damages in the supreme court for the loss of her locks.

The jury also awarded $1,000 to Harry Haynes, the girl's father, for loss of his daughter's services. Miss Haynes sued for $50,000.

RIPPER NOTE PUTS WOMEN IN PANIC

New York City Terror Stricken by Murder of Children.

THOUGHT WORK OF MANIAC

Little Girl and Boy Have Been Slashed to Death in the Hallways of Their East Side Homes and Slayer Has Escaped Easily and Makes Threats of More Crimes.

The people of the thronging east side of Manhattan have been thrown into a state of absolute panic by the diabolical murder of two children by some supposed ripper maniac, the narrow escape of a third child and the written threat that other such appalling crimes will be committed.

Mothers are now afraid to let their young ones out alone even in the daylight. After dark the streets, usually filled with playing youngsters, are now almost deserted, except by older boys and girls, and most of these are acting as amateur detectives.

The detective force of the police department appears to be helpless in the situation. Forty men have been working on the case, but have discovered nothing. One New York newspaper has offered a reward of $2,000 and another $1,000 for information leading to the capture of the miscreant.

Girl Is First Victim.

The first murder took place the evening of March 19. Pretty four-year-old Leonore Anna Cohn was stabbed to death and mutilated on the stairway of her home at 353 Third avenue by some one who had lured her a few steps from the door of her home with a piece of candy, which was still in her hand when her body was found a few minutes after the crime.

The second murder was perpetrated the evening of May 3. Four-year-old Charles Murray was stabbed to death and slashed in the hallway of his home at 270 First avenue, almost exactly as was little Leonore. Like Leonore, the boy was a pet in his neighborhood, where he and his little tricycle were well known as the tiny lad rode up and down the sidewalk.

Just before the boy was caught by the slayer and lured to his death a little girl, six-year-old Beatrice Hunter, was grabbed as she played in front of her home at 125 East Fifth street, but she succeeded in wresting herself free and ran safely to her parents' flat. But even this has not helped the police, nor has the circumstance that each crime was immediately discovered.

Makes Horrible Threat.

To the mother of little Charlie Murray the threatening letter was addressed May 6. It ran:

Dear Mrs. Murray—I really feel sorry for you. I sit in my room here in this neighborhood and watch this crowd of police looking for me, but when the excitement cools off again some evening after dinner I am going out to kill again. While I feel sorry for you, you must understand that I must see blood and cut flesh. The police can never get me. Lovingly, R. F. C.

The wording seemed so terrible to the mother, with the body of the little ripper victim in the next room, that she fainted. Her husband, recalling the instructions of the police, wrapped up the letter carefully in a piece of paper, and it was taken to police headquarters and examined. It was noted that on the back flap of the envelope was the name "R. F. Crane," with pencil marks of attempted obliteration over it. The entire letter was written in pencil, whereas others previously received in the district were in ink.

After this letter had reached the police more men were added to the large squad working on the case, but Deputy Police Commissioner Lord said he had not a word to give out. He admitted that his men had made no definite progress.

Several arrests on suspicion have been made, but have led to nothing. The excitement on the east side became intense when the ripper's threat became known. Practically the entire womanhood of that part of New York city is terror stricken, but many are doing their utmost to assist the police to put an end to the peril.

BIG PRIZE HERD IS CURED.

$4,000,000 Worth of Dairy Cattle Freed From Hoof Disease.

The $4,000,000 prize herd of dairy cattle which has been in quarantine at the old Hawthorne race track, Chicago, since they were exposed to the foot and mouth disease last fall, have been released as cured.

A veterinarian employed in fighting the plague said this showed the disease was curable, but killing was the surest way to halt the spread of contagion.

WOMAN DIES FROM CAT BITE.

Remembered Too Late That Pet Had Been Bitten by Dog.

Mrs. Adelia Meyers of Croton, N. Y., is dead as a result of being bitten by a pet cat several weeks ago. Doctors diagnosed her illness as hydrophobia. After she became ill her husband, Charles Meyers, recalled that a dog had bitten the cat before it attacked Mrs. Meyers, but it was not suspected that the dog was infected with rabies.

Made In America

From satin to sausage, from rubber to rouge. We have always been used to, behold—"Made in Germany," "England" or "Belgium" or "France." On everything salable sold. But since Europe has gone on a blood drunken spree And the east is mixed up in the row, The things that we eat and the things that we wear Are made in America now.

From a white cotton gown to a diamond crown, From hairpins to automobiles, From embroidery floss to the pickles and sauce We relish so much with our meals; From pans to pianos, from carpets to cake, Though all unadorned with a crest, The "Made in America" label affixed To anything stamps it the best. —Minna Irving in Leslie's.

LIBERTY BELL SUFFERS NEW CRACK AT CROWN.

Believed to Have Come Since Preparations For Trip to Fair.

The crack in the Liberty bell, which within the last two or three years spread up and around the bell through the lettering, now extends to the top and round the crown, an expert microscopic examination has proved.

This new extension of the crack has occurred, it is believed, since the clapper was removed the other day at the instance of Philadelphia authorities and a heavy steel frame or "spider" placed inside to protect the bell from shocks and jolts on its journey to the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Removal of the ancient clapper that has hung silent within the old bell for three-quarters of a century was necessary, so that the supporting device, which is visible only after careful inspection, might be placed within the bell without boring or cutting the metal in any way. When the Liberty bell starts on its journey to the west the great clapper, battered and corroded, will be displayed on the trip.

The committee in charge has announced that the bell will leave Philadelphia July 5 via the Pennsylvania railroad to Chicago, then to Kansas City, to Denver, to Ogden, Utah, via Cheyenne and Salt Lake City, to Huntington, Ore.; to Spokane, to Portland, to San Francisco.

Returning stops will be made at Oakland, Sacramento, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Walla Walla, Salt Lake, Ogden, Cheyenne, Denver, Lincoln, Omaha, Topeka, Kansas City, Des Moines, East Moline, Joliet, Chicago, Logansport, Pittsburgh and Harrisburg. It will be seen in seventeen states.

SUNDAY MOVIES HELD LEGAL.

Court Decides Cities Have No Power to Close Film Theaters.

Municipalities in New York state are without power to prohibit moving picture shows on Sunday by means of fines and imprisonment, according to a decision of the court of appeals.

The decision was made in the case of a Yonkers man, who was arrested and imprisoned for violating a local ordinance prohibiting Sunday moving picture shows. He obtained his release on a writ of habeas corpus, and the city of Yonkers appealed.

The opinion declared that the legislature alone may command how Sunday may be kept.

New York city theater managers have decided, however, that they will not try to compete with the picture houses on Sunday. The decision does not free them from the Sunday law, they think.

FORESEES ETERNAL YOUTH.

Scientist Believes Way Will Yet Be Found to Abolish Old Age.

Professor J. S. Shearer of Cornell university, addressing the Roentgen Association of Greater New York to commemorate the twentieth anniversary of the discovery of the X ray, said he believed science might yet find a method of bringing back the tree to the seed and man from old age to the vigor of young manhood.

Through the X ray it might be possible, he thought, to control and supply what is needed in the upbuilding of life cells and by so doing find the way of "ungrowth" and thus bring old age back to youth, so that in the dim future men of science and of marvelous attainments may be preserved in all the strength of the age of accomplishment.

COOK TO TRY MOUNTAIN.

This Time Explorer of Arctic Says He Will Conquer Mount Everest.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the arctic region explorer, has announced that he will attempt to climb Mount Everest, in the Himalayas, the highest mountain in the world, this summer. He will sail from San Francisco with a party of twelve on May 27 and expects to reach Nepal, in northern India, in July. The expedition, he says, will require seven months.

"The purpose is exploration," said Dr. Cook. "The ascent never has been attempted before, largely because of the hostility of the natives."

Puts Losses in War at 8,268,000.

Colonel Edwin Emerson, a war correspondent now telling "the truth about the war," has been giving New Yorkers the "official figures" of the losses "as compiled by the Red Cross societies." When his totals were added together they were found to make the staggering total of 8,268,000 men!

Mack's Definition.

A successful vaudeville playlet nowadays must have every ingredient of a successful two dollar drama. It must have directness of purpose. It must lead unwaveringly to its denouement. A three-act drama is one-third piffle, one-third explanation and one-third substance minus the piffle and the explanation.—Willard Mack, in Dramatic Mirror.

Reaching an Understanding.

A big row was going on in an Atchison home and finally, the Globe says, one of the neighbors rushed in and said to a woman who was red in the face from screaming at a very angry looking man, "Look here, what's the matter?" "Oh, it's nothing," said the red-faced woman. "Father and I are having a perfect understanding, that's all."

Decision on Domestic Animals.

One who keeps a domestic animal, such as a cat, having neither mischievous nor vicious propensities, is not liable for damages done by it while trespassing; but if the owner knows it to be vicious he must use reasonable care to restrain it and prevent it from doing injury.—Blachoff vs. Cheney, Conn., 91 Atl. 660.

CHAPTER I.

A Serious Event.

Le Comte de Sabron, in the undress uniform of captain in the Cavalry, sat smoking and thinking. What is the use of being thirty years old with the brevet of captain and much distinction of family if you are a poor man—in short, what is the good of anything if you are alone in the world and no one cares what becomes of you?

He rang his bell, and when his ordonnance appeared, said sharply:

"Que diable is the noise in the stable, Brunet? Don't you know that when I smoke at this hour all Tarascon must be kept utterly silent?"

"Tarascon is never silent. No French meridional town is, especially in the warm sunlight of a glorious May day."

"The noise, mon Capitaine," said Brunet, "is rather melancholy."

"Melancholy!" exclaimed the young officer. "It's infernal. Stop it at once."

The ordonnance held his kepi in his hand. He had a round good-natured face and kind gray eyes that were used to twinkle at his master's humor and caprices.

"I beg pardon, mon Capitaine, but a very serious event is taking place."

"It will be more serious yet, Brunet, if you don't keep things quiet."

"I am sorry to tell, mon Capitaine, that Michette has just died."

"Michette!" exclaimed the master. "What relation is she of yours, Brunet?"

"Ah, mon Capitaine," grinned the ordonnance, "relation! None! It is the little terrier that Monsieur le Capitaine may have remarked now and then in the garden."

Sabron nodded and took his cigarette out of his mouth as though in respect for the deceased.

"Ah, yes," he said, "that melancholy little dog! Well, Brunet!"

"She has just breathed her last, mon Capitaine, and she is leaving behind her rather a large family."

"I am not surprised," said the officer. "There are six," vouchsafed Brunet, "of which, if mon Capitaine is willing, I should like to keep one."

"Nonsense," said Sabron, "on no account. You know perfectly well, Brunet, that I don't surround myself with things that can make me suffer. I have not kept a dog in ten years. I try not to care about my horses even. Everything to which I attach myself dies or causes me regret and pain. And I won't have any miserable little puppy to complicate existence."

"Hien, mon Capitaine," accepted the ordonnance tranquilly. "I have given away five. The sixth is in the stable; if Monsieur le Capitaine would come down and look at it."

Sabron rose, threw his cigarette away and, following across the garden in the bland May light, went into the stable where Madame Michette, a small wire-haired Irish terrier, had given birth to a fine family and herself gone the way of those who do their duty to a race. In the straw at his feet Sabron saw a ratlike, unprepossessing little object, crawling about feebly in search of warmth and nourishment, uttering pitiful little cries. Its extreme loneliness and helplessness touched the big soldier, who said curtly to his man:

"Wrap it up, and if you don't know how to feed it I should not be surprised if it could induce it to take a little warm milk from a quill. At all events we shall have a try with it. Fetch it along to my rooms."

And as he retraced his steps, leaving his order to be executed, he thought to himself: "The little beggar is not much more alone in the world than I am! As he said that he recalled a word in the meridional patois: Pitchoune, which means 'poor little thing.'"

"I shall call it Pitchoune," he thought, "and we shall see if it can't do better than its name suggests."

He went slowly back to his rooms and busied himself at his table with his correspondence. Among the letters was an invitation from the Marquise d'Esclagnac, an American married to a Frenchman, and the great lady of the country thereabouts.

"Will you not," she wrote, "come to dine with me on Sunday? I have my niece with me. She would be glad to see a French soldier. She has expressed such a wish. She comes from a country where soldiers are rare. We dine at eight."

Sabron looked at the letter and its fine clear handwriting. Its wording was less formal than a French invitation is likely to be, and it gave him a sense of cordiality. He had seen, during his rides, the beautiful lines of the Chateau d'Esclagnac. Its turrets surely looked upon the Rhone. There would be a divine view from the terraces. It would be a pleasure to go there. He thought more of what the place would be than of the people in it, for he was something of a hermit, rather a recluse, and very reserved.

He was writing a line of acceptance when Brunet came in, a tiny bundle in his hand.

"Put Pitchoune over there in the sunlight," ordered the officer, "and we shall see if we can bring him up by hand."

CHAPTER II.

Julia Redmond.

He remembered all his life the first dinner at the Chateau d'Esclagnac, where from the terrace he saw the Rhone lying under the early moonlight and the shadows falling around the castle of good King Rene.

As he passed in, his sword clanking—for he went in full dress uniform to dine with the Marquise d'Esclagnac—he saw the picture the two ladies made in their drawing-room: the marquise in a very splendid dress (which he never could remember) and her niece, a young lady from a country whose name it took him long to learn to pronounce, in a dress so simple that of course he never could forget it! He remembered for a great many years the fall of the ribbon at her pretty waist, the bunch of sweet peas at her girdle, and he always remembered the face that made the charm of the picture.

Their welcome to him was gracious. The American girl spoke French with an accent that Sabron thought bewilderingly charming, and he put aside some of his reserve and laughed and talked at his ease. After dinner (this he remembered with peculiar distinctness) Miss Redmond sang for him, and although he understood none of the words of the English ballad, he learned the melody by heart and it followed with him when he left. It went with him as he crossed the terrace into the moonlight to mount his horse; it went home with him; he hummed it, and when he got up to his room he hummed it again as he bent over the little roll of flannel in the corner and fed the puppy hot milk from a quill.

This was painstaking operation and required patience and delicacy, both of which the big man had at his finger-tips. The tune of Miss Redmond's song did for a lullaby and the puppy fell comfortably to sleep while Sabron kept the picture of his evening's outing contentedly in his mind. But later he discovered that he was not so contented, and counted the hours when he might return.

He shortly made a call at the Chateau d'Esclagnac with the result that he had a new picture to add to his collection. This time it was the picture of a lady alone; the Marquise d'Esclagnac doing tapestry. While Sabron found that he had grown reticent again, he listened for another step and another voice and heard nothing; but before he took leave there was a hint of a second invitation to dinner.

The marquise was very handsome that afternoon and wore yet another bewildering dress. Sabron's simple taste was dazzled. Nevertheless, she made a graceful picture, one of beauty and refinement, and the young soldier took it away with him. As his horse began to trot, at the end of the alley, near the poplars at the lower end of the rose terrace he caught a glimpse of a white dress (undoubtedly a simpler dress than that worn by Madame d'Esclagnac).

CHAPTER III.

A Second Invitation.

"I don't think, mon Capitaine, that it is any use," Brunet told his master.

Sabron, in his shirt-sleeves, sat before a table on which, in a basket, lay Michette's only surviving puppy. It was a month old. Sabron already knew how bright its eyes were and how alluring its young ways.

"Be still, Brunet," commanded the officer. "You do not come from the south or you would be more sanguine. Pitchoune has got to live."

The puppy's clumsy adventuresome feet had taken him as far as the high road, and on this day, as it were in order that he should understand the struggle for existence, a bicycle had cut him down in the prime of his youth, and now, according to Brunet, "there wasn't much use!"

Pitchoune was bandaged around his hind quarters and his adorable little head and forepaws came out of the handkerchief bandage.

"He won't eat anything from me, mon Capitaine," said Brunet, and Sabron ceremoniously opened the puppy's mouth and thrust down a dose. Pitchoune swallowed obediently.

"I shall call it Pitchoune," he thought, "and we shall see if it can't do better than its name suggests."

He went slowly back to his rooms and busied himself at his table with his correspondence. Among the letters was an invitation from the Marquise d'Esclagnac, an American married to a Frenchman, and the great lady of the country thereabouts.

"Will you not," she wrote, "come to dine with me on Sunday? I have my niece with me. She would be glad to see a French soldier. She has expressed such a wish. She comes from a country where soldiers are rare. We dine at eight."

Sabron looked at the letter and its fine clear handwriting. Its wording was less formal than a French invitation is likely to be, and it gave him a sense of cordiality. He had seen, during his rides, the beautiful lines of the Chateau d'Esclagnac. Its turrets surely looked upon the Rhone. There would be a divine view from the terraces. It would be a pleasure to go there. He thought more of what the place would be than of the people in it, for he was something of a hermit, rather a recluse, and very reserved.

He was writing a line of acceptance when Brunet came in, a tiny bundle in his hand.

"Put Pitchoune over there in the sunlight," ordered the officer, "and we shall see if we can bring him up by hand."

CHAPTER II.

Julia Redmond.

He remembered all his life the first dinner at the Chateau d'Esclagnac, where from the terrace he saw the Rhone lying under the early moonlight and the shadows falling around the castle of good King Rene.

As he passed in, his sword clanking—for he went in full dress uniform to dine with the Marquise d'Esclagnac—he saw the picture the two ladies made in their drawing-room: the marquise in a very splendid dress (which he never could remember) and her niece, a young lady from a country whose name it took him long to learn to pronounce, in a dress so simple that of course he never could forget it! He remembered for a great many years the fall of the ribbon at her pretty waist, the bunch of sweet peas at her girdle, and he always remembered the face that made the charm of the picture.

Their welcome to him was gracious. The American girl spoke French with an accent that Sabron thought bewilderingly charming, and he put aside some of his reserve and laughed and talked at his ease. After dinner (this he remembered with peculiar distinctness) Miss Redmond sang for him, and although he understood none of the words of the English ballad, he learned the melody by heart and it followed with him when he left. It went with him as he crossed the terrace into the moonlight to mount his horse; it went home with him; he hummed it, and when he got up to his room he hummed it again as he bent over the little roll of flannel in the corner and fed the puppy hot milk from a quill.

This was painstaking operation and required patience and delicacy, both of which the big man had at his finger-tips. The tune of Miss Redmond's song did for a lullaby and the puppy fell comfortably to sleep while Sabron kept the picture of his evening's outing contentedly in his mind. But later he discovered that he was not so contented, and counted the hours when he might return.

He shortly made a call at the Chateau d'Esclagnac with the result that he had a new picture to add to his collection. This time it was the picture of a lady alone; the Marquise d'Esclagnac doing tapestry. While Sabron found that he had grown reticent again, he listened for another step and another voice and heard nothing; but before he took leave there was a hint of a second invitation to dinner.

The marquise was very handsome that afternoon and wore yet another bewildering dress. Sabron's simple taste was dazzled. Nevertheless, she made a graceful picture, one of beauty and refinement, and the young soldier took it away with him. Sabron had just returned from a long hard day with his troops, and tired out as he was, he forced himself to give his attention to Pitchoune. A second invitation to dinner lay on his table; he had counted the days until this night. It seemed too good to be true, he thought, that another picture was to add itself to his collection! He He had mentally enjoyed the others often, giving preference to the first, when he dined at the chateau; but there had been a thrill in the second caused by the fluttering of the white dress down by the poplar walk.

To-night he would have the pleasure of taking in Miss Redmond to dinner.

"See, mon Capitaine," said Brunet, "the poor little fellow can't swallow it."

The water trickled out from either side of Pitchoune's mouth. The sturdy terrier refused milk in all forms, had done so since Sabron weaned him; but Sabron now returned to his nursery days, made Brunet fetch him warm milk and, taking the quill, dropped a few drops of the soothing liquid into which he put a dash of brandy, down Pitchoune's throat. Pitchoune swallowed, got the drink down, gave a feeble yelp, and closed his eyes. When he opened them the glazed look had gone.

The officer hurried into his evening clothes and ordered Brunet, as he tied his cravat, to feed the puppy a little of the stimulant every hour until quarters, lonely and disappointed, watching with an extraordinary fidelity by his "sick friend," could have seen the two ladies at their grand solitary dinner, his unfilled place between them, he might have felt the picture charming enough to have added to his collection.

U. S. ATTITUDE IS FOR PEACE

President in Speech Tells American Policy.

SPOKE TO NEW CITIZENS

Declares There is Such a Thing as Being Too Proud to Fight—Advice All to Become Thorough American Citizens.

Philadelphia, May 11. — With his every word measured by his responsibility to his country, President Woodrow Wilson declared that the attitude of the United States in the present crisis was directed toward securing peace.

Fifteen thousand persons within the great Convention Hall heard these pacific declarations with mingled emotions. Four thousand of these had foreworn allegiance to the foreign potentates, many of whom are now at grips. It was a welcome to these foster sons of Miss Columbia that the occasion itself sprang into being.

It was an occasion freighted with momentous and impressive conditions, and none knew that better than the slim, pale man who was giving to the world America's message in the present situation, and who represented in his words America's official attitude toward those without who have caused her grave danger and much concern.

A nation too proud to fight was the keynote of the speech made by President Wilson. In a pacific solution of our present troubles he had an abiding faith, resting largely in the wisdom with which the people accepted conditions and the trust in a divine providence which would mark the national future.

The president among other things said: "Fellow citizens, such a reception as this warms my heart. It is not of myself I wish to think, but of this great body of citizenship. This is the only country in the world which experiences its constant and repeated rebirth. Other countries depend upon the multiplication of their native population. This country is constantly strengthened from a new source by voluntary association with it.

"So, by the gift of the free will of an independent, our strength is being constantly renewed by the same process by which it was originally created. It is as if humanity had determined to see that this nation, founded for the benefit of humanity, should not lack the support of the people of the world.

"What does citizenship mean? It means allegiance to no one unless it be God. It certainly does not mean allegiance to those who temporarily represent this government. It means allegiance to a great ideal, great principles and a great hope of the human race. You have come to America not only to earn a living, but to help forward a great enterprise of the human spirit.

"There is but one utterance which you make. It is this longing for liberty and justice, while you bring with you naturally all the ideas of the country from which you come, you are bringing the best of the spirit of that country, but you are not looking back to perpetuate the systems you have behind you.

"You can't dedicate yourselves to America unless you become thorough Americans. You can't become thorough Americans as you think of yourselves in a group. America does not consist of groups. The man who thinks he is part of a group is not ready to become an American citizen yet.

"The man who trails his nationality with him is not worthy to become of the Stars and Stripes.

"Peace is the healing and elevating influence of the world. There is such a thing as a man being too proud to fight. There is such a thing as a nation being so far in the right that it does not have to use force to show it is right. America touches all sides, touches elbow and elbow on all sides with mankind.

"My urgent advice to you would be not always to think first of America, but also of humanity. You do not love humanity if you seek to divide humanity into jealous camps. Humanity cannot be welded together by jealousy or hatred. America was created to unite mankind by the passions that uplift and not those that debase. Sometimes a man is fortunate if he has to work only with his hands and not with his head. We can't exempt you from work. We can only make work light in the spirit it is carried."

At the conclusion of his address the audience rose to its feet and cheered and waved flags more than a minute, evidencing an enthusiasm and a patriotic feeling that fairly swept one off his feet.

BRIDE'S VEIL ABLAZE
Allentown Young Woman Burned About Arms and Shoulders.

Allentown, Pa., May 11. — Fright, bordering on panic, seized a wedding party in St. Mary's Greek Catholic church, when, during the procession preceding the ceremony, a lighted candle carried by one of the best men, came in contact with the bride's long veil.

In an instant the gauze adornment was ablaze. The fire was extinguished after the veil and part of the bridal gown had been consumed. The bride, Miss Annie Brihko, was painfully burned about the arms and shoulders.

Determined the ceremony should go on, a visit was made to a nearby store and a new trousseau obtained. Following the return of the bridal party to the church, the knot was tied. The bridegroom was Michael Bednal.

MAY SINK TRANSYLVANIA
German Submarines Lying In Wait For Another Liner.

New York, May 11.—From the same German source which predicted the sinking of the Lusitania, word has been sent out that if German plans do not miscarry, the Anchor liner Transylvania, which left New York Friday afternoon with 876 passengers on board, will fall a prey to a submarine.

The Transylvania is chartered by the Cunard line and is destined for Liverpool and Glasgow. A large proportion of her cargo consists of contraband.

Among the liner's passengers are many Americans and a large number of Canadian and British reservists. There are also twenty-three Canadian nurses aboard, bound for the field hospitals in the war zone.

Texas Backs President.
Austin, Tex., May 11.—The senate adopted a resolution on the Lusitania disaster, pledging support to President Wilson "in any course he sees fit to take to uphold the dignity and honor of the United States."

CUT into small pieces a pound of cold veal that was served as a roast the day before. Put in a chafing dish or frying pan, which has been greased with two tablespoonsful of butter. Season with one onion, a tart apple, a clove of garlic, all minced fine. Stir in a tablespoonful of curry powder and half a tablespoonful of flour. Add the meat and pour in half a pint of stock. Add a little lemon juice and salt. Let it all simmer slowly for a few minutes and serve hot.

Other Recipes.
Lamb Broth.—Lamb broth can be taken by almost every one. Here is a good recipe for making it. Have a pound of the neck of lamb cut into small pieces and put it in a granite or aluminum saucepan with two cupsful of cold water for two hours. Then bring it to the boiling point and let it cook, just below the boiling point, for three hours. Strain and season with salt. This could easily be made in a fireless cooker.

Chicken Broth.—This can be made in the same way as lamb broth. Use the neck, the wings and the back of chicken and reserve the other parts for other uses. If rice can be taken a little rice, well boiled, can be added to either chicken or lamb broth.

Cracker Gruel.—Break a soda cracker or two, buttered thin, into a cupful of boiling milk and cook, stirring constantly for three or four minutes. Season with salt.

Stewed Prunes and Figs.—Wash prunes or figs to be stewed and then soak in cold water for ten hours. Cook for half an hour in the same water. Sweeten slightly if necessary.

Spinach on Toast.—Cook some well washed spinach for twenty minutes in boiling, salted water, drain it and rub it through a sieve. Have ready a piece of buttered, thin toast, which has been quickly dipped in boiling water. Moisten the spinach with a little melted butter, season with salt and pepper and pile neatly on toast.

Apple Snow.—Bake an apple in an earthen dish, covered. Remove core and skin before baking. Then rub it through a sieve, add it to the well beaten white of an egg and beat for twenty minutes. Sweeten to taste and serve piled up in a glass cup.

Orange Whip.—Squeeze the juice from an orange. Beat the white of an egg and add a tablespoonful of sugar and a little of the orange juice, beating stiffly again. Then pour the rest of the juice into a glass cup, pile on the white and serve.

Grapefruit and Orange.—Grapefruit pulp cut in dice and served in a glass with the juice of an orange and a very little sugar, with a tablespoonful of brandy or sherry, if that is allowed, makes a most refreshing dish for an invalid.

How to Destroy Catarrh Germs and End Catarrh Forever

Catarrh, according to a noted authority, is a germ disease and the only way to cure it so it will stay cured and never come back is to kill and drive out of your system the catarrhal germs which have found lodgement there. When the germs go the catarrh will stop.

There is nothing better for destroying catarrh germs than breathing in to your nose and lungs the pleasant, soothing, healing, germ destroying air of Hyomei (pronounced High-oh-mey) made from purest oil of Eucalyptus and combined with other powerful healing, antiseptic and germ destroying ingredients. Hyomei penetrates and heals the inflamed swollen membranes of your nose and throat, stops discharges, clears the passages and completely overcomes the disease by destroying its cause. For catarrh germs cannot live in your body after Hyomei reaches them. The People's Drug Store and many other good druggists in Gettysburg and vicinity have long sold Hyomei on a positive guarantee of successful results or money back and find this generous policy pays.

Healthy Hair Soft and Fluffy

Beautiful hair does not just happen but is always a matter of care and proper nourishment of the hair roots. No matter if your hair is falling out, stringy, lifeless, and full of dandruff, Parisian Sage, an inexpensive tonic sold by The People's Drug Store, is all that is ever needed. It nourishes the hair roots and stimulates the growth of new hair. All dandruff is entirely removed with one application, and itching scalp and falling hair cease; your hair will be bright, vigorous, soft and fluffy.

Whether your hair is oily, dry or brittle, Parisian Sage immediately removes the cause and by toning up the scalp quickly restores the hair to its original brilliancy and vigor.

This delightful tonic is a real necessity and will not fail to give a lasting benefit to your hair and scalp.

Victims of Rheumatism

The People's Drug Store's No-Cure No-Pay Offer Attracts Many Sufferers to Test Rheuma.

If Rheuma, the wonderful prescription for rheumatism sold by The People's Drug Store and all druggists, does not cure any purchaser, the drug-gist will return your money without any red tape.

Rheumatism is a dangerous disease; because of its shifting nature it often strikes the heart and proves fatal. Any one with even a taint of rheumatism ought to drive it out as soon as possible.

Rheumatism is caused by sluggish, worn-out or over-worked kidneys, which become clogged and fail to eliminate the impurities from the system.

Rheuma acts promptly and directly upon the kidneys; it cleanses them; it absolutely renovates and restores them in perfect condition, able to do the work nature intended they should do. 50 cents a bottle.

A Welcome Pay Envelope

HONEST, old man, I don't know what we would have done without that AETNA ACCUMULATIVE ACCIDENT POLICY.

When a fellow lives on the "no-work-no-pay basis" and has nothing to fall back on, a cracked head and a broken arm don't get him anything. All he can do is sit around and wonder how the wife can scrape together enough to keep the family going. He just naturally worries himself twice as sick.

But this Aetna Accident Policy takes the place of the pay envelope. Gives you $50 a week as long as you're totally disabled by your injuries and $25 a week even though you are only partially disabled by them. Pays the bill for a surgical operation, too.

All you do is sit back and tell your broken head and arm: "All right, boys, take your time about healing. I'm provided for until you're fit again."

You Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 20 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Tonaline with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Tonaline—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say or think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from 5 to 10 pounds in the first two weeks by following this simple direction, and best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Tonaline does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starch of what you have eaten into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Tonaline stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds more of healthy flesh.

Tonaline is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive, as it costs only $1.00 for a 15-day treatment. Mail orders filled by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass. People's Drug Store, Gettysburg, Pa.

UNQUESTIONABLY SMART AND EFFECTIVE.

So simple a frock as this is easily within the powers of the home seamstress, yet it is unquestionably smart and effective. Dotted lawn, organdy, voile or marquisette may be employed to make the design, which has a short waist joined to a full four-piece skirt under a plain belt of the same material. The medium size calls for 5 1/4 yards of 36-inch material. The open neck is finished with a flare collar, which may be of contrasting material if preferred.

In cutting out the material it will be necessary to reserve an open width for the skirt. Place the front and back gores on the goods, the lower edge of the back gore facing the upper edge of the front, and vice versa. There will be sufficient space in the corner of the material to the left of the front gore to cut the cuff.

Now, folding the cloth, place the position first on a crosswise fold the belt, follow with the sleeve on a lengthwise thread of material, then the back, the stay and collar, the last three on a lengthwise fold. Opposite the back section and to the left of the sleeve place the pocket, then to the right of the pocket lay the underfacing and the front of the waist, on a lengthwise thread of material.

If preferred the waist may be joined to the skirt under a ruffle of the same material instead of a belt. The frilled effects are particularly smart just now, taking the place of plain belts, especially with women of youthful figure.

The most noticeable features of the new skirts are their width, center-front or front side openings, yokes and, occasionally, pockets. A short woman will frequently prefer a straight front panel in the yoked skirt so that her height will not be materially diminished, at least from a front view. Truth to tell, the petite woman would better leave the yoked skirt for her tall sister.

A simple circular model is that having the large buttons arranged in a row reaching from waistband to hem. This model is excellent for wash material, for the skirt can be opened when laundered. Real buttonholes should be made in the skirt if it is fashioned of wash material, so that the skirt can be spread perfectly flat for the ironing.

A seasquable frock in dotted material, easily within the powers of the home seamstress.

HARRISBURG WOMAN FINDS QUICK RELIEF

Mary Wheeler Gains in Weight After Taking Wonderful Remedy.

Mary Wheeler of 706 Green street, Harrisburg, Pa., for a long time was a victim of stomach disorders. She tried many treatments and found nothing that could help her.

At last she came upon Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and quickly found herself on the way to health. She wrote: "I received your wonderful stomach remedy. I took it and it acted just as you said it would. I had suffered with my stomach for nearly a year and doctored all the time. The first dose of your treatment gave me relief. I feel like new. I had awful distress after eating and suffered from bloating and gas, but now I feel fine, am gaining in weight and can eat anything."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

Mr. Treadwell's Vacation

By MARTHA V. MONROE

Elisha Treadwell about the 1st of April saw in a newspaper among advertisements for summer hotels and boarding houses one that arrested his attention. It was this:

A widow with several grown sons and daughters, owning a country home, would like a few boarders for July and August. A small auto, tennis grounds and other means of amusement will be at the disposal of guests; reference required.

Mr. Treadwell inferred what was not stated in the advertisement—that a guest would be received as a member of the family. He was obliged if he went on a vacation to go alone. Consequently he had no desire to go, for he was much dependent upon associates. In this country place he fancied he would obviate this difficulty. The "sons and daughters," especially the latter, seemed inviting. He entered into correspondence with the advertiser with the result that he engaged a room for his vacation in July.

He arrived in the evening about 8 o'clock, which was shortly before dark. A negro butler announced that most of the family had gone on a picnic and he expected them home at any minute. Miss Clara was somewhere about, but he didn't know where. Treadwell said he would wait. He went into the living room and, seeing a lounge, on which some one had evidently been reclining, for there were an afghan and a pillow on it, he sat down for a rest.

The twilight deepened. There seemed to be no one about to light the lamps, and the young man soon found himself in the dark. Tired from traveling, he stretched himself on the lounge. The first thing he knew, or rather, didn't know, he was asleep.

He was awakened by a hand laid on his forehead—a soft hand, which he felt sure was feminine.

"Feel better?" The voice of the speaker was a melodious soprano.

Now, there was something extremely pleasant about this petting, which was, of course, intended for another, and Treadwell was not minded to bring it to a termination, so he simply said "Um," without opening his mouth.

"I've brought up some supper for you. Do you want it?"

"Um, uh," grunted Treadwell, giving a negative intonation. Meanwhile the hand was removed from the forehead and slid down to one of Treadwell's. This was becoming a member of the widow's family with a vengeance. Treadwell was somewhat troubled about the result of his accepting these attentions, but both the hand and the voice were so soft that he thought only of how to avoid interrupting them.

"I wish they'd come," the lady continued. "Mother said they'd surely be back by 7 o'clock, and it must be 9. I'm going to light up."

"Oh, uh!" grunted Treadwell, as though his throat were out of order, still holding on to the hand.

"Rather lie in the dark, eh? That's the way with me when I'm sick. I wonder what's become of the man who was to arrive this evening. If he should come and find the house dark it would be a poor reception. He might turn around and go back to the city. I wonder what he's like."

Treadwell could hardly help saying, "He's a fine fellow, and when you see him you will have met your fate," but he refrained. He was thinking that he would excite suspicion by silence when there was the sound of an automobile and a babel of voices approaching. Withdrawing his hand from hers, he rubbed his eyes, started up and exclaimed:

"I must have fallen asleep."

There was a subdued shriek. The girl hustled about and struck a match. She saw a strange man looking at her as if just awakened from sleep.

"Beg pardon," he said. "I'm Mr. Treadwell. I was waiting for some one to come in when I dozed off, I suppose."

"Are you sure you've been asleep?" She raised the chimney of a lamp and touched the match to the wick. At the same time a noisy party of picnicers came up the steps and poured into the room.

"Mother," said the girl who had been petting the guest, "this is the gentleman that was to arrive."

"I'm Elisha Treadwell," said that gentleman.

"Am happy to see you, Mr. Treadwell. I'm sorry you've had such a doleful reception."

"Don't mention it."

"Ethel, why didn't you light the lamps?"

"Why, mother, Jim was in here on the lounge, or I thought he was, and I didn't think he wanted a light. He had gone up to his room."

"He didn't," said Treadwell—"I mean I didn't mind sitting in the dark at all."

Mr. Treadwell was taken into the dining room, where a hot supper was served with plenty of light—and it was evident to him that he had struck just the place he needed for a vacation. Now and again he caught Ethel looking at him suspiciously, but he put on an expression of unconscious guilt—if that expresses what he was trying to do—and at last she seemed satisfied.

The month of July passed only too rapidly for Mr. Treadwell, who found the companionship of the family very pleasant.

There is nothing more to this story barring the commonplace, except that Treadwell went back to the city at the end of his vacation engaged to Ethel.

It is better to busy oneself about the smallest thing in the world than to treat a half hour as worthless.—Goswami.
